

John Sampson joined the Police service in 1981 following service in the Army. He has worked in two Home Office Forces, South Yorkshire Police and West Yorkshire Police. His experiences span the breadth of policing activity. He held three chief officer command appointments with West Yorkshire Police and was seconded to the staff of the National Police Leadership College. He has held ACPO portfolios at national, regional and local level leading on public order, civil contingencies, firearms, diving and marine, serious and organised crime and counter terrorism. He has studied at the Universities of Leicester, Cambridge and Harvard and the two national police colleges of Bramshill and Tulliallan.

Mr Sampson joined the CNC as Deputy Chief Constable on 1st December 2008.